Don't Miss Dolly Dean,

Larger audiences at both the man ince and the evening performances last night indicate the growing popularity of the Billy Malone show at the Hippodrome, and are spurring him and his company to greater efforts to make this the most successful summer season the little house of musical comedy has ever had. Like every other organization, a theatrical company is just what its manager is, and comes as nearly up to his standards as cirsumstances will perm't. It takes only a few minutes acquaintance with Mr. Malone to realize that with him, entertaining the people is a serious business, and he is putting his whole train and coul into the task. While! I is a pleasant, genial fellow with a tender regard for every member of his company, yet no one can take any liberties bring upon his organization, the criticism of his patrons and the public. His bills reflect his high ideals of quality and cleanliness of character for there isn't a line or word allowed in Billy Malone's shows that the most particular could object to. They are a pleasing relief, too from the usual style of tablo'd bills in which there isn't enough plot to make one sit up and take notice. Billy is going to have a plot that is good and has plenty of comedy and if there isn't a natural place run in the musical numbers by the suggestion of the lines, he just runs the number in anyway and then proceeds with the story. Such is the case in the play tonight, "Dolly Dean" which is showing the last time, and is also true of "The Southern Romance" a pretty little comedy story with a love theme alright and plenty of song numbers put on by the versatile folks with which Billy has surrounded himbeen used on the Hipp program and tomorrow the first appearance of this bill will no doubt be marked by a larger attendance than is seen at the last showing of the present bill.

Nelson is presenting an entertaining departure from the usual run of plays today in "The Girl Dodger." It is a laugh story and easily the best in which Charles Ray has appeared. The situations are bright, logical, clearly pictured and of the kind that permits human characterisation. There is considered the situations are bright. human characterization. There is one allp, one reckless omission, but it is so quickly followed by compensating new business that is is easily forgiven. Of course, Ray is in his element as an awkward, faltering, hesitating, self-doubting youth of extremely limited social experience, but in this case he is not an awkward country boy. He is a dreamer so absorbed in mental effort as to unintentionally disregard human characterization. There is one slip, one reckless omission, but it is is not an awkward country boy. He is a dreamer so absorbed in mental effort as to unintentionally disregard conventions of all kinds, a much more modern characterization than the false conception of our country boys. The first situation which puts the dreamer in contact with a beautiful and refined young girl whom he supposes to be a gay chorus lady, is enough in itself to cary most comedles over to success. The star and his support do fine work

Circus Photoplay with Billie Rhodes. Billy Rhodes in a circus story "Hoop

La" is the attraction in the main at the Princess today with a Pathe News reel added. A circus picture is always interesting, just like a circus always brings all the folks out, and Billie as either equestrienne or clown is fine to look at. There are no high lights in the story more than to say it is enter taining and can be watched through eithout wearying the audience.

Every Class of Entertainment.

Dixie is putting on a varied program teday, placing Bessie Love in the head lines as star of the story "Carolyn of the Corners." A Harolud Lloyd comedy, a Mutt and Jeff cartoon and a Pathe Review are added attractions which make the program ideal. The Pathe Review is exceptionally good slow motion pictures of France and Spain being shown in the natural col-ors.

He was in the fearful fighting at Argonne, the Meuse and St. Mihiel and through it all escaped with nothing more than a little touch of gas which was so slight as to have already lost its effects.
